Historical Timeline

- 1890 Founded as Jinan Huamei Hospital by American missionary physician — the medical precursor of today's Qilu Hospital. One of the earliest Western-medicine institutions in China.
- 1930s Achieved nationwide renown as one of China's "Four Great Hospitals": "北协和、南湘雅、东齐鲁、西华西" (Peking Union, Xiangya, Qilu, West China).
- 2000 Integrated into Shandong University as its directly-affiliated teaching hospital. National Health Commission (NHC) directly-managed Grade 3A institution.
- 2013 Qilu Hospital (Qingdao) Phase I opened on December 26 at Hefei Road 758, Shibei District — bringing the prestigious Qilu brand to Qingdao's growing population.
- 2023 Phase II completed and opened December 26 — total bed capacity expanded to 2,600. Eight specialty centers established including Cardiovascular, ENT, Brain, Orthopedics, Medical Imaging, Emergency, Rare Diseases, and Anesthesia & Critical Care.

Grade 3A — What It Means

China's hospital grading places Grade 3A (三级甲等) at the apex — fewer than 10% of hospitals achieve this. Qilu Hospital is an NHC directly-managed Grade 3A institution, signifying excellence in clinical quality, patient safety, research, teaching, and management. The hospital is a National Regional Medical Center and benefits from Shandong University's deep academic resources.
